2008 Sacramento Chinatown Mall Culture Fair Featured Speakers: Stories From Chinatown

The 2008 Chinatown Mall Culture Fair is honored to have some of the most renowned pioneers in today's Chinese-American society. Each will be telling their story of growing up in America's Chinatowns. For more information go to www.yeefow.org/culturefair

Loni Ding

Loni Ding was awarded the National Education Association 2002 Human and Civil Rights Award for her work in the Asian Pacific community. California Governor Gray Davis and the Chinese Historical Society of America honored Ding with a Lifetime Achievement Award.

Over a 30-year career as an Emmy award-winning director and producer, Ding has created an outstanding body of work, including the epic scope of the two-part PBS presentation, Ancestors in the Americas, the first television series to offer an in-depth look at the Asian American immigrant experience from the Chinese of the 1700s to the 1900s. Ding is currently on the faculty of the Asian American and Ethnic Studies Department at U.C. Berkeley and is the recipient of numerous fellowships and career achievement rewards. William Wong

A pioneer among Asian American journalists, Wong has been a columnist, reporter, editorial writer, business editor, assistant managing editor, and ombudsman. Among his most significant achievements were in-depth news feature stories about a growing Asian American community for The Wall Street Journal's front page in the 1970s and his provocative columns about Asian America, race relations, multiculturalism and a changing America.

Wong has been a regional commentator on "The News Hour with Jim Lehrer" on the Public Broadcasting System and a guest commentator on other national and local radio and television public affairs shows.

Lora Jo Foo

Noted Asian American activist, lawyer and author, Lora Jo Foo, will discuss her new book Earth Passages: Journey Through Childhood. Earth Passages tells the author's uplifting story of a girl born and raised in family of eight in San Francisco's Chinatown where her mother worked six days a week, twelve hours a day in a garment sweatshop.

Lai Keng

Lai Keng is considered one of the oldest living survivors of Angel Island and author of Good Fortune: My Journey to Gold Mountain. It is her personal account of her family's preparation as they prepare to pass their interrogation on Angel Island. Because of the strict laws, the family must lie convincingly to officials in order to enter the country. Li Keng and her family had hoped that America truly is a place with gold-paved streets. It is an honest portrayal of an immigration story--the hardships, poverty, etc. More info at http://teacher.scholastic.com/activities/asian-american/angel_island
